

Used Medical Equipment Sales Business Information

Our company has been operating multiple medical-related businesses, including practice start-up and management consulting, temporary staffing, and medical equipment sales. Among these, medical equipment sales has become one of our core businesses. We are currently expanding this business overseas in a manner similar to our operations in Japan. In recent years, global inflation and tariff hikes have caused prices for new medical devices and products to rise. As a result, demand for used medical devices has also increased. Therefore, we have decided to launch our used medical device sales business. Additionally, we accept trade-ins for all types of used medical devices, from small to large devices, including ultrasound diagnostic equipment, endoscopic devices, CT scanners, MRI machines, mammography equipment, and other high-precision medical devices.

Medical equipment is an indispensable product when opening or operating a hospital or clinic. However, due to the high cost of medical equipment, there are often cases where the opening of a hospital or clinic is delayed due to financial issues, or where an already operating hospital or clinic faces financial difficulties.

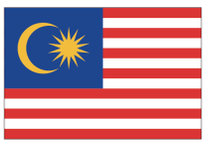

The main issue with used medical equipment is maintenance. However, in some cases, we may be able to consider establishing a maintenance company overseas, so please feel free to consult with us.
